System Requirements: Windows XP/Vista/7/8, Intel Software, 546 Mb, Internet Explorer 7 Once you've set up a proxy on your computer, you'll be able to download all the Flash files you'd like from any website. This is highly useful if you use a lot of content from the Internet. You can access them with the mouse or the keyboard. There are 2 different proxy programs available, one is free, the other is not. To make the right choice, you have to look at what your proxy will do for you and what it will not. Google proxy: the best proxy ever The Internet proxy at Google is one of the best proxies ever. The Google proxy only works if you use the browser Chrome, and it allows you to access thousands of content on websites like Facebook, Twitter, Youtube and Google Video, Youtube, Instagram, Instagram, Tumblr and Wikipedia. It works by intercepting requests from your computer and sending them to Google servers. If you search for a website on Google, then your computer will ask Google server for the content it wants. The proxy then shows you the content as if you'd have found it online yourself. If the proxy has been set up correctly, you'll see the content of the website on your browser, in the same way as if you had searched directly from the website. The Google proxy will be invisible for the user. The proxy does not require an Internet connection, the proxy can work without the Internet and without an Internet connection. The proxy is very fast and all information will be sent in real time, meaning that the results will not be delayed. If you don't need the proxy anymore, you just have to cancel the account that you have, and you'll be able to use your computer normally. Free proxy: an alternative to the Google proxy If the Google proxy is not your choice, you'll have to opt for another proxy. Here are 2 free proxies available. ProxyTool offers a free proxy that works without an Internet connection and without an Internet connection. It works by intercepting requests from your computer and sending them to the Internet. ProxyTool does not require an Internet connection, but if you want to use it, you have to make sure
