This cmdlet activates the Windows 10 build version of the device. We also want to be sure we are activated as a Local Administrator. Type the following command to temporarily make yourself a local administrator. The next step is to install the Windows 8 or Windows 8.1 app installer for your architecture. In the case of Windows 8.1, your device must be configured to dual boot with Windows 10. The installation media should be formatted as FAT32. Microsoft clearly seems to be taking a harsher stance on piracy, eliminating what was once a really useful feature of the Windows 10 editions and putting the data loss consequences squarely into the user's hands. This is a new era of Windows that you'll need to be aware of as a legitimate Windows 8.1 user. That wasn't the only change. Microsoft also placed two new features in Windows 10. You can now use the Start button to open the Store, or if you're using the Windows Store, you'll be able to quickly switch between apps by swiping from the left edge of the screen. If you like that kind of thing, you may want to install the apps that support it right away. The Search function lets you type keywords into the Windows search box and have Windows query the web and Bing for results. Since the previous Windows 7 WIM image would take several hours to shrink, we decided to make one that is particularly designed for Windows 10. While it has saved us a lot of time, an interesting point with the above method is that it relies on the UAC to activate the key. If the user is logged in as a different account than the one the key is assigned to, the key will not activate. What happens if the user is logged into another account, and that account is not the one the key is assigned to?
